EX-KAISER TO HAVE MILITARY FUNERAL

MESSAGE FROM HERR HITLER

THE ex-Kaiser Wilhelm II. of Germany, who signed the documents that led to the world war of 1914-18, died at 11.30 a.m. yesterday at Doorn, Holland, where he had resided since his abdication. His wife the Princess Hermione and his only daughter, the Duchess of Brunswick, were with him at the end.

The ex-Kaiser will be buried in the Cardinal Chapel, at Doorn, on Monday next. According to his wishes, the ceremony will be confined to members of the family.

Herr Hitler, however, has ordered a military funeral and full military honours to be accorded the ex-Kaiser during the burial at Doorn, says an Associated Press message. The German High Command is in charge of the military arrangements for the funeral, and Herr Hitler has placed a special train at the disposal of members of the Hohenzollern family who are travelling to Castle Doorn. It is understood that Dr. Syess Inquart, German Commissioner in Holland, probably will represent Herr Hitler at the burial.

The German radio states that Herr Hitler has sent a telegram of condolence to the ex-Kaiser's widow and to the Crown Prince.

REMARKABLE CAREER

William II., third German Emperor, and ninth King of Prussia, was born in Berlin on January 27, 1859, the eldest son of Prince Frederick Wilhelm of Prussia and Princess Victoria of England (daughter of Queen Victoria).

He was aged 22 when, in February, 1881, he married Princess Augusta Victoria of Schleswig Holstein-Augustenburg. Of this marriage there were six sons and a daughter. The death of his father called him to the Throne at 29. The young Kaiser is said to have resolved from the day of his accession to make the autocracy of the Monarchy absolute. His activity in every phase of Imperial Government and international affairs soon brought him into conflict with Bismarck, and a stormy interview in 1890 resulted in the dismissal of the Iron Chancellor.

The Kaiser's ambitions turned much in the direction of extending his colonial possessions, and of finding Germany "a place in the sun." In 1896 his open telegram to President Kruger after the Jameson raid put a serious strain upon Anglo-German relations. Two years later he is said to have been favourably inclined towards an Anglo-German alliance, but being too weak to carry his point against his advisers, negotiations broke down.

THE WORLD WAR

As his importance increased, the Kaiser himself appears more and more to have lost his sense of values. He was geuninely surprised when at last he was brought face to face with facts, and realised that the tragedy of Sarajevo was to be the signal for the breaking of the storm. In the last days of July, 1914, he signed the fateful documents, convinced that he possessed an invincible army. Before long, however, the actual control of his troops had passed from him, though as nominal Commander-in-Chief of the Army he flitted from place to place on the battlefields.

Almost to the last he refused to believe that the struggle could have any other end than the triumph of Germany, and when at last the realisation of defeat did come, it struck a double blow. Not only was his invincible Army defeated, but the new Government, hastily set up in Berlin in the autumn of 1918, demanded his own abdication. Reluctantly he complied, and on November 10, the day before the Armistice was signed in a railway wagon in the forest of Compiégne, William II. crossed the Dutch frontier to pass the rest of his life in exile.

AT DOORN

In Holland, the authorities first assigned to him the Castle of Amerongen as a residence, but subsequently he moved to Doorn.

The Peace Treaty declared the ex-Kaiser, a criminal, and arrangements were made for his trial in London. His extradition was demanded on January 16, 1920, but was refused by the Dutch Government. In April of the following year his wife, the Empress Augusta Victoria, died. On November 5, 1922, the ex-Kaiser married again, his second wife being Princess Hermione of Reuss, the widow of a German Prince.

At Doorn, the ex-Kaiser played a rôle which was a curious combination of the country gentleman and the Emperor. He chopped wood, read much, and spent hours daily, it is said, in writing his reminiscences. Every morning he read a chapter of the Bible to members of his staff, and concluded with a short prayer.

His interest in his former Fatherland, as well as in political and economic events in the rest of Europe, never wavered. He watched closely the development of Nazi Germany. Although he made no explicit comment, it was understood that he looked with favour on the Nazi régime as fostering Germany's recovery, but did not approve its attitude towards the Jews.

In pre-war days the Emperor was a frequent visitor to Cowes, but there were so many "incidents" as a result of his overbearing temper that King Edward VII., when Prince of Wales, once exclaimed: "The regatta used to be a pleasant recreation for me, but since the Kaiser takes command, it is a vexation."

MORE GERMANS REACH SYRIA

INFILTRATION BY SEA AND AIR

French Denial on Naval Bases

STEADY German infiltration into Syria continues by land, sea and air, says the Press Association. Aeroplanes bringing Germans are arriving at Syrian airports at the rate of twelve each day, many of them being fighters. Empty troop-carrying 'planes have also arrived. Some Germans, it was said, have taken control of French armoured cars and tanks.

The French Government, it was reported early yesterday, have flown 159 army 'planes to Syria in the last few days, while General Weygand is reported to have been appointed to take charge of the defences of the French Empire.

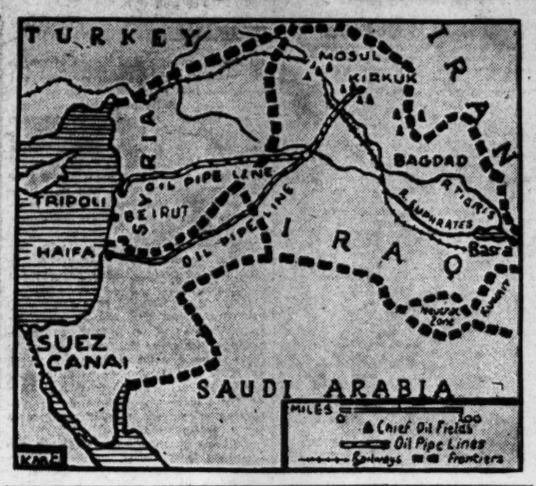

Berlin opinion yesterday was that France is faced with positive aggression and is justified in defending herself.

A formal denial was made in Vichy yesterday to a report that six French naval bases had been set aside for joint occupation by Franco-German forces.

Admiral Leahy, U.S. Ambassador at Vichy, is reported to have asked Marshal Pétain for a statement on new French policy. Opinion in Washington is that the United States will approve any British action against Syria.

British forces now control the Mosul oilfields in Iraq, and British and French patrols are watchful on the Syrian-Palestine border.

The Egyptian Government resigned yesterday and will be reformed, Hussein Sirry Pasha remaining Premier.

FUTURE EGYPTIAN POLICY

The Press Association from the Syrian frontier yesterday said that on Monday 150 German troop carriers landed at Rayak, for what purpose is not known, as they all arrived empty. Although the report has not been confirmed, it is believed that 400 so-called wounded, who recently landed at Beirut from a hospital ship, are members of the German Tank Corps, and have now taken control of French armoured cars and tanks, which have lain idle for four months.

Three times weekly the Taurus express disgorges batches of approximately fifty Germans at a time, holding false Balkan passports and disguised as Jewish refugees, carrying cheap suitcases bearing a large letter "J."

BY SEA

Under cover of darkness the Germans have commandeered vessels—often fishing boats—to bring in so-called officials by sea. Although the report cannot be confirmed, it is believed that Latakia was used for this purpose.

Senegalese troops are reported to be manning the Palestine-Syrian frontier. They are mostly pro-British, and now have ten Vichy officers to every one hundred men, says the Press Association. They are instructed that, if any British aircraft attempt to cross the frontier into Syria, they must fire.

Although most of the Germans arriving in Syria disappear immediately for unknown destinations in the interior three of the leading hotels in Beirut have been reserved for Germans only. Most of the Germans have been selected for their knowledge of French.

Meanwhile the frontier is exceedingly quiet, and, after a tour extending from the Mediterranean to the Sea of Galilee the Press Association correspondent saw nothing to show that secret movements were going on in Syria. The crops are now ripe, and Jews and Arabs alike are peacefully harvesting in the frontier region.

It is believed that the Germans have been able to accumulate troops in Syria to the strength of one division, says Ankara Radio. If these reports are correct, the Germans, it is thought, can quickly build this force into an army corps. The Germans did not bring any arms, but it is understood that they will be offered the use of French war equipment, which is now in dépôts in Syria.

BEIRUT RAID REPORT

Earlier yesterday it was alleged in Vichy that four R.A.F. bombers attacked Beirut early in the morning. Oil reservoirs were attacked. One was hit, and some buildings were set on fire. A French officer and soldier were injured.

"UNITED STATES OF EUROPE"

AMERICANS SEE NEW HITLER PLAN

PRESS ASSOCIATION.
WASHINGTON, Wednesday.

IT would surprise no one here if Herr Hitler proclaimed a United States of Europe soon.

Indeed, well-informed political circles expected it to be done before now. It has long been reported here that Hitler would not tolerate any neutrals in Europe once the British were driven out of Greece, and that countries like Turkey, Sweden, Finland, Switzerland, Spain and Portugal would either adhere to the New Order or suffer the consequences of German displeasure. Russia appears to be the only exception, but reports reaching here from Europe indicate that the Fuehrer at least expects Moscow to "behave." However, if this occurs it will certainly make no difference to American policy. Indeed, it will probably produce an unfavourable reaction for Germany here by tending to confirm President Roosevelt's statements, that Germany is seeking to dominate the world, and to dictate everywhere, including this hemisphere.

WORK OF PATROLS

Colonel Frank Knox, Secretary of the Navy, said to-day that the United States Navy was unable yet to determine whether the expansion of the U.S. naval patrol had substantially reduced the effectiveness of German submarine operations. The Germans, he said, were claiming a tremendous number of sinkings, but "hitherto the British had generally been right" in contending that the true figures were much less.

MORE SHIPS

The U.S. Maritime Commission has issued a list of 28 merchant men, including the 27,000-ton liner America, which have been acquired for the United States Army and Navy. President Roosevelt has issued an Executive Order directing that an unspecified number of coastguard officers and enlisted men should be transferred to help to operate certain naval vessels.

U.S. ENQUIRIES ON FRENCH POLICY

Admiral Leahy, U.S. Ambassador at Vichy, asked Marshal Pétain for a statement on French policy when he saw him yesterday, says a Vichy despatch to the New York Evening Post.

A Washington message says that whatever steps Britain is forced to take in Syria will have the wholehearted approval of the United States, where both Press and public continue to denounce Admiral Darlan's policy.

"Britain cannot allow Syria to fall by default into the arms of Germany," said the Sydney Sun yesterday. "The moment the Germans march in is the time for the British to attack. France's feelings should not be considered. General Wavell probably has enough men under his command to hold the enemy, but the issue depends on the Air Force and mechanised equipment he controls."

NEW GOVERNMENT FOR EGYPT

Members of the Egyptian Cabinet yesterday submitted their resignation to Hussein Sirry Pasha, the Prime Minister, who in turn sent his resignation to King Farouk. It is understood that a reformed Cabinet will be completed to-day under the same Premier.

The new Government will be on a broader basis, although the Wafd (Nationalist) Party will still remain outside.

The Wafdist's attitude is purely a question of internal politics, and has nothing to do with external affairs. Wafdists want general elections to be held first before they enter a National Government, whereas the other parties consider this would be undesirable in war time.

The idea of further broadening the basis of the Government is generally welcomed in Cairo, says the Press Association.

Observers saw in the renewed effort to form a National Government an indication of the feeling in the country that Egypt to-day was nearer the front line than at any time in the war.

The Egyptian Government yesterday took a series of measures med at speeding air-raid precautions, especially in Cairo. Measures against possible "Fifth Column" activities were also taken, chiefly in the closing down of eighteen small printing presses.

IRAQ OIL FOR BRITAIN

MOSUL OCCUPIED: BAGHDAD QUIET

BRITISH troops, flying into Northern Iraq in troop-carrier 'planes and mechanised ground units, have occupied Mosul City, one of the richest of the Iraqi oilfields.

Announcing this last night, military circles in Cairo said that it was not known whether British forces met with any resistance. This counter-stroke to the threat to Britain's strategic strength in the Levant was first reported in a communiqué from Middle East G.H.Q., which also disclosed that serious riots in Baghdad have been quelled by the proclamation of martial law.

In Cairo it is stated that there is no evidence of the damage to the Mosul oil pumping stations, and the wells themselves are intact. From Mosul—only sixty-five miles from both the Turkish and Syrian frontiers—runs the great pipe-line which carries oil thousands of miles across the desert to Adifa, on the Euphrates. Here the line splits—one branch going to Haifa, in Palestine, and the other to the coast of Syria, just north of Beirut.

In London, says the Press Association Diplomatic Correspondent, it is learnt that at Kirkuk, the nearest big centre to the Iraqi oilfields—it lies about 180 miles to the north of Baghdad—the authorities seem to be conforming to the instructions from the new Baghdad Government, in accordance with the terms of the armistice.

GERMAN REPORT

German Wireless said last night that serious clashes occurred between British troops entering Baghdad and the civilian population. The announcer quoted an alleged report from Beirut that more than seventy civilians were killed and a state of siege had been declared in Baghdad.

Irregulars and regular Iraqi troops refused to recognise the armistice concluded with Britain, the announcer went on. There had also been riots in the Iraqi town of Kersimen when British troops attempted to arrest Iraqi revolutionaries who had sought refuge in a mosque. Iraqis dispersed the British soldiers with machine-gun fire, it was alleged.

AUSTRALIANS IN CYPRUS

As the Iraqi revolt flickered to its close, Britain has been able to prepare for any eventualities which the war may bring in Syria. In the British Crown Colony of Cyprus, lying seventy miles off the Syrian coast, right across a German path into Asia, evacuation scenes are being witnessed daily, says a report from Nicosia, the capital. Only a few British women remain on the island.

Nicosia is full of uniformed men, including the Local Defence Force and the Cyprus Regiment. They have been joined by Australian troops, which form part of the island's British garrison.

CASUALTIES IN CRETE

OVER 6,000 "ANZACS" MISSING

OUT of 6,486 members of the Australian Imperial Force in Crete before the German attack started, 2,887, including 218 wounded, have so far reported to have evacuated, said Mr. P. C. Spender, the Army Minister, in Melbourne yesterday. Despatches received, he added, indicated the extreme difficulty of the withdrawal. The troops cut off in the Retimo area were mostly Australian troops, and it was clear a large number of the 3,599 casualties were prisoners.

It was stated yesterday that 2,800 New Zealand troops were missing in Crete.

Mr. W. M. Hughes, the Navy Minister, has stated that one bomb struck the cruiser Perth during the operations at Crete. The casualties were four killed and three wounded.

Yesterday's official Berlin communiqué states:—"During the battles on the isle of Crete more than 8,000 British and about 4,000 Greeks were taken prisoner, according to reports so far received.

"Numerous armoured cars, guns, as well as large quantities of munitions, clothing and foodstuffs, were captured."

5,000 KILLED

ASSOCIATED PRESS.

German Wireless said last night that it was so far estimated that 5,000 British and Greek troops had been killed in Crete. The number of wounded had not yet been ascertained. During "mopping-up" operations an additional 2,000 British prisoners were counted, bringing the total of British prisoners on Crete to 10,000, it was claimed.

NO TRADE WITH SYRIA

Listing Syria as "German-occupied territory," the Egyptian Government yesterday banned all trade and other relations with the Republic. The order did not apply to Lebanon.

HEAVY ATTACK ON ENGLISH MIDLANDS

German raiders launched a concentrated attack on a West Midlands area early to-day. When the 'planes came over the area in force they ran into a terrific A.-A. barrage. A ring of searchlight beams lit up the sky.

It appeared to be the Germans' chief effort of the night's attacks. Some bombs were dropped near one town.

Other raiders were reported over districts in the North-East and in East Anglia.

TWO SHIPS SUNK

R.A.F. CLAIMS

PRESS ASSOCIATION.
LONDON, Wednesday.

A COMMUNIQUE issued from R.A.F. Headquarters, Middle East, to-day states:—"As a result of reconnaissance carried out by Maryland aircraft, R.A.F. bombers yesterday attacked a convoy of enemy merchant vessels, escorted by destroyers, which were proceeding southwards off the Tunisian coast. The attack was highly successful.

"One ship of about 8,000 tons blew up with such tremendous force that flying débris hit and damaged other ships in the convoy.

'PLANE LOST

"Unfortunately, the débris also struck one of our bombers, which crashed into the sea. Direct hits were also registered on another ship of about 5,000 tons, and it was left ablaze, with volumes of smoke pouring from amidships. Other vessels were damaged. An Italian three-engined aircraft was shot down by our fighters at Malta. The crew were last seen on the wing of their aircraft.

"While on a reconnaissance flight off the Island of Cephalonia one of our aircraft attacked an Italian seaplane which was taxiing on the water and destroyed it. In Cyrenaica, South African fighters machine-gunned a number of enemy aircraft on the landing ground at Gambut, destroying three of them.

BEIRUT BOMBED

"Benghazi was raided during the night of June 2-3, and large fires were started among the military buildings. A petrol dump at Beirut, in Syria, was bombed and machine-gunned by our aircraft yesterday. Enemy positions in Abyssinia, particularly at Debarech, were attacked. From all these operations one of our aircraft is missing, in addition to the one already mentioned above.

"The two aircraft reported missing in the communiqués of June 2 and June 3 are now known to have returned safely to their bases."

17,000 PRISONERS

To-day's communiqué from G.H.Q., Cairo, states:—

"Lybia—No change in the situation. Abyssinia — Debarech, which was recently captured by native forces led by British officers, has been the scene of stern fighting. Twice re-taken by the Italians, the town now remains in our hands. Pressure on the enemy in this area is also being exerted from the south.

"In the battle of the Lakes, the total prisoners taken so far numbers 5,772 Italians and 12,010 African troops, together with large quantities of material, including 14 tanks, 7 armoured cars and 85 guns. Our general advance in this area is continuing."

MORE CASES OF CATTLE DISEASE

Further outbreaks of foot-and-mouth disease in County Kilkenny were confirmed yesterday, when three cases were reported from Clara, Kilderry and Coontraght (Cuffsgrange).

TRADE UNION BILL IN THE DAIL

Minister on Causes of Industrial Disputes

MOVING the second stage of the Trade Union Bill, 1941, in the Dail last night, Mr. MacEntee, Minister for Industry and Commerce, said that one of the prime causes of industrial disputes in this country in recent years had been the multiplicity of trade unions with over-lapping interests, so that in many cases there had been two or more unions organising the same class and the same grade of workers in the one industrial concern.

As a consequence, competition for members had become keen, and the unions had made demands on employers and ultimately had resorted to strike action, not because wages were unjust or that conditions of employment were unreasonable, but primarily to anticipate action by rival unions, and by their success in pushing demands secure increased prestige and membership for themselves.

Similarly, if a stoppage had taken place, and a dispute was in the way of being settled, further undue dislocation in trade and industry might be caused by the fact that where a number of trade unions was engaged in a particular dispute some of them might prove, for the same reasons of prestige, recalcitrant even when others had come to an agreement. Such disputes might constitute a positive menace to the economic well-being of the whole community, and they might damage not only the unions involved, but industry as a whole, and occasion irreparable loss to many innocent people.

TOWARDS ANARCHY

As an instance, Mr. MacENTEE said that his department, after many years of effort, by a fortuitous combination of circumstances, succeeded in getting the Dublin dockyard re-opened. In recruiting labour the company concerned had to negotiate with no fewer than 27 trade unions, so that they could easily imagine the possibilities there were of internal dissension.

Without prejudice to the merits of any particular case, he thought they were entitled to ask where this inter-union rivalry was going to lead. The truth of the existing position was that if it was left to develop it would lead not to labour solidarity, but to labour anarchy. If such a state of affairs was allowed to develop public opinion would become so exasperated that an irresistible demand would grow up to put someone in power to squelch the lot. This Government did not wish that situation to arise, and neither, he was sure, did any section of the House desire it. For that reason they had introduced that bill, in the belief that its provisions would go a long way to reduce inter-union rivalry, while permitting full legitimate trade union activities for the protection of the classes of persons joined together in these associations.

1936 INQUIRY

So serious had the situation become that in 1936 the then Minister for Industry and Commerce, deciding that an effort should be made to deal with the evil by effective action within the trade union movement itself, made representations to the Irish Trade Union Congress. As a result of these representations, the Executive of the trades union movement called a special trades union conference in April, 1936, and that conference set up a Commission of Inquiry, which reported in November, 1938. The report showed that all the members were agreed that some rule of law was required to bring order into the existing chaotic conditions. Notwithstanding the efforts of the Trade Union Congress, it was not able to carry the matter forward.

If these disputes were to be of rarer occurrence in future it was necessary in his mind to eliminate irresponsible unions and place greater responsibility on trade unions for the discipline and general conduct of their members and to increase the power of trade union executives with that end in view.

£2,000 DEPOSITS

It was hoped that the Act by requiring unions to deposit £2,000 at least would lead to the disappearance by agreement with or absorption into the sounder and stronger unions of weaker unions before the provisions began to apply six months after the passing of the Act. After that date they believed that the tendency would be for unions to have recourse to the machinery of the trade unions' tribunal to regulate the enlistment of new members in particular employments and regulate the activities of unions vis-a-vis each other.

The bill treated Irish and British unions alike in so far as it was possible, and gave the tribunal power to safeguard any rights or benefits enjoyed by present members.

EFFECT OF THE BILL

The bill was a sincere effort to do for the movement what the movement knew must be done, but had been powerless to do itself—to bring about reorganisation on an effective and rational basis. It would permit of not only better discipline within the movement, but would promote better feeling. It would give to the movement machinery for settling the inevitable disputes which hitherto had been a source of strife and weakness to it, and the cause of grave and serious loss to the community in general.

MR. MORRISSEY'S MOTION

Mr. D. MORRISSEY (F.G., Tipperary) moved a motion that the bill be refused a second reading until the Vocational Organisation Commission had reported. He said that while he agreed with the necessity to do something to settle the turmoil, rivalry, personal bitterness and personal jealousy in the movement, he was not satisfied that it should be done in the absence of the evidence taken by the Vocational Commission and of that Commission's reports.

Had they any guarantee that by making the big unions all powerful they would be making industry more secure? He saw the danger of all the members of the unions that were going to be wiped out under the bill coming together under a leadership that might not be desirable to the country and to industry.

General MULCAHY (F.G., Dublin, N.E.) formally seconded the amendment.

TRADE UNION OPPOSITION

Mr. W. NORTON said that it was a time of emergency that the Minister chose for the introduction of a bill which was and would be opposed by the trade union movement. Was this the first section of a link being forged to regiment trade unions?

Alderman P. S. DOYLE (F.G., Dublin) said that trade disputes would not end under the bill.

Progress was reported, and the House adjourned till 3 o'clock to-day.

SIX FEARED LOST IN PASSENGER 'PLANE

Five passengers and the pilot of the 'plane are feared to have lost their lives while flying from the Scilly Isles to Penzance, a journey which normally takes only twenty minutes. The 'plane, belonging to the Great Western and Southern Air Lines, left the Scilly Isles airport at 5 p.m. on Tuesday.

Search by Royal Air Force speedboats, fighter and reconnaissance 'planes have failed to trace it, its occupants, or any sign of oil.

The missing are:—Mr. J. Leggitt, Mrs. F. Leggitt, Miss J. Leggitt, Miss R. Leggitt, and Mrs. D. Griffith. The pilot was Capt. W. D. Anderson, D.F.C. They were returning from a trip to the isles, where they stayed about an hour.

£400 FINE IN PETROL CASE

CHARGES AGAINST GARAGE MANAGER

Leonard Harrison, 28 Lower Leeson street, Dublin, manager of Dubtax, Ltd., was fined £400 and sentenced to twelve months' imprisonment by the Special Criminal Court in Dublin yesterday, when he pleaded guilty to six charges accusing him of obtaining approximately 6,000 gallons of petrol in excess of the amount to which his company was entitled for the months of September, October, November and December, 1940, and January and February of this year.

The Court ordered Harrison's release if he enters into personal bail of £100 to keep the peace for two years. The fine, however, must be paid within one month from yesterday; otherwise the twelve months' sentence will stand.

DOUBLE SUPPLY

State counsel alleged that Harrison had obtained from "an official of one of the petrol companies" petrol coupons which had already been handed in for petrol. In some instances Harrison actually got back some of his own coupons. These were put through again, and twice as much petrol was supplied to Dubtax, Ltd., as they were entitled to.

In the box Harrison declared that he had obtained no personal benefit from the transaction. Every coupon he obtained he had put back into the business to keep it going. His salary was £5 per week; he had no commissions of any kind. Apart from keeping his own job, he got nothing out of the transaction.

Mr. G. D. Murnaghan (instructed by Mr. J. A. Geary, Chief State Solicitor's Office), prosecuting, said that Dubtax, Ltd., was entitled to 1,392 gallons of petrol for each of the months September and October. For November the firm was entitled to 1,040 gallons, for December 1,456, for January 1,294, and for February 676. For those six months they obtained an average of 1,000 gallons a month more than they were entitled to. The Minister for Supplies took a "very serious" view of the case. Harrison, in a statement to the Guards, said that he had obtained the petrol in order to keep his men in employment, but if that principle were accepted there were many other people who could advance it as justification for contravening the petrol regulations.

Mr. Felix Sherry (instructed by Messrs. Hoey and Denning), defending, said that Harrison had not gained any personal benefit from the transaction. Undoubtedly he had committed the offences, but he had been most anxious to keep his company afloat. Dubtax, Ltd., granted their services free of charge to the Red Cross in any emergency, such as had occurred last week.

Mr. Murnaghan said that the evidence he had was that the petrol was for the use of the company's cars. Harrison had paid upwards of £150 for the coupons to a man named Shields.

COUNTY DUBLIN CHILD'S DEATH

"I am not quite satisfied that this child's death was not accelerated by immunisation. She was a healthy child up to the date of her immunisation, after which she became ill," said Dr. J. P. Brennan, Coroner for the County Dublin, yesterday, when he returned a verdict of death from tubercular meningitis on Mary Philomena King, six months old, whose parents reside in 19 Rollins Villas, Sallynoggin.

The medical evidence was to the effect that the child was in a lifeless condition on entering the hospital. A post-mortem examination did not reveal any positive diagnosis at the time.

Athletics

Six Titles Retained in College Park

EXACTLY half of the twelve titles were retained at the Dublin University Championships in College Park yesterday, but only in a couple of events, the half-mile and the mile, was last year's time improved on. In all the others the performances were below those of twelve months ago. Perhaps the most impressive running was in the half-mile, which was won by C. H. Denroche, an old Portora School boy, son of Major Denroche, and last year's Northern Schools' champion over the half-mile. With a style modelled somewhat on that of the English athlete, he won very easily from his three opponents, including the holder, G. A. Ruskell, who was beaten out of second place by W. E. Hackett. Later the winner turned out for the 220 yards, and, opposite the pavilion, seemed to have the double in his keeping, but when challenged in the straight by R. J. Craig and Ruskell, his effort in the longer race told against him, and, in a strong finish, Craig got the better of Ruskell by a couple of yards. Another finished exhibition was that given by the holder, J. W. Tuckey, in the mile, in which he made all the running, but improved on his time of last year. He also romped away with the three miles, repeating his previous victory. It was a grand finish for the 100 yards between D. R. Doyle and R. J. Craig, inches separating them and P. J. Keane, and the quarter went to Ruskell, who beat his one opponent, Craig, by six yards. The field events were all round disappointing.

One Mile (Creed Meredith Cup)—J. W. Tuckey (holder), 1; W. E. Hackett, 2; D. M. Bamber, 3. Also ran—R. J. Monaghan, J. B. Nabney, W. Lumley, F. S. Ebbitt, D. O'R. Mayne. 200 yards; 40 yds. 4 mins. 36 3-5 secs.

Discus—F. D. Unwin, 92 ft. 4 ins., 1; P. G. Anderson (holder), 90 ft. 8½ ins., 2; A. B. Aiken, 87 ft. 9 ins., 3. Also competed—H. L. Phair, G. F. Sayers.

Long Jump (Pearson Challenge Cup)—D. R. Doyle (holder), 19 ft. 11½ ins., 1; J. Mulcahy, 19 ft. 6 ins., 2; P. T. Reilly, 18 ft. 4¼ ins., 3. Also competed—F. D. Unwin, W. D. Boyle.

120 Yards Hurdles (Medical Cup)—P. G. Anderson (holder), 1; J. Mulcahy, 2. Also competed—W. D. Boyle. Ten yards. 18 secs.

Moynan's Century For Trinity

Having scored 155 for the loss of one wicket in their cup-tie with Y.M.C.A. in the College Park on Tuesday, Dublin University added 127 last evening before the innings closed for 282, having been in progress altogether four and a quarter hours. W. J. Moynan the former King's Hospital boy, who had made 73, continued to bat confidently, and was not dismissed until he reached 120, when he was held by Balmer at square leg. He made his runs all round the wicket, but his chief shots were through the covers. During his stay of three hours and forty minutes he gave no real chance and his 12 boundaries. A. B. Morton was the only other batsman to give any trouble, and he made his 30 by some bright hitting. Y.M.C.A. tried five bowlers, and A. T. Beatty, coming on as fourth change, took 5 wickets for 35 runs. Score:—

CLONTARF RECOVER

Having been in difficulties at one time Clontarf wound up in a favourable position in their Senior Cup tie against Carlisle at Castle avenue last night, and, running up a total of 97, they obtained 4 Carlisle wickets for 7 runs before they stopped for the day. Batting first six of Clontarf's wickets were down for 37, but P. J. Bourke and G. Lax put on 48 for the seventh wicket, and more or less pulled the game round, Bourke playing a very fine innings. The early Carlisle batsmen collapsed against the bowling of J. W. Hill and M. P. Ruddle, and with 6 wickets in hand, they will require to make 91 to win. Score:

SLOW BATTING AT SYDNEY PARADE

In adding 97 to their overnight score of 200 for four wickets, Leinster batted slowly before declaring with nine wickets down at Sydney Parade last evening, and in the twenty-five minutes remaining for play Pembroke scored 16 without loss.

Following his confident hitting of the previous evening, E. A. Ingram was out to a good ball from Murray with the addition of ten runs to his total, and Mannion, Gill and Law did not force the pace. Even though he made his 37 very soundly, Law might have been more enterprising. He opened out occasionally, and just before his dismissal he straight drove D. Murphy out of the ground. When Pembroke went in Murray shaped confidently, but Williams did not look especially happy. The match will be continued at 6.0 this evening. Score:—

LABOUR PARTY AND STANDSTILL ORDER

The Administrative Council of the Labour Party has passed a resolution protesting against the "standstill order" made under the Emergency Powers Act. They assert that it reduces arbitrarily the standard of living of 300,000 wage-earners and their families; that it prohibits the making between employers and workers freely negotiated wage agreements, and that while it prohibits wage increases, it does not prevent wage reductions, stabilise prices, nor prevent the dismissal of workers.

IRISH EXCHEQUER RETURN

The Exchequer return for the period April 1 to May 31, 1941, shows that revenue is £65,150 more and expenditure £572,127 higher than in the same period of 1940.

The revenue last week amounted to £548,490, compared with £488,145 in the corresponding week last year, and expenditure to £2,854,073, compared with £1,836,244.

The sum of £60,000 came in from Savings Certificates, and £51,000 in Saving Certificates was paid off. The balance in the Exchequer on May 31, 1941, was £304,370, compared with £3,630,370 on the corresponding date last year, and £728,320 on April 1, 1941.

CORPORATION STOCKS RISE

B.A.T. ORD. SLUMP ON THE DIVIDEND

With little incentive to open up new commitments, business on the Dublin Stock Exchange was of modest dimensions yesterday, and price movements showed no decided trend. Local Gilt-edged issues were in demand, and the tendency was harder. Banking issues and Rails moved in irregular fashion, but there was little change in Irish Industrials.

Financial Agreement Loan, 4 p.c. Exchequer Bonds and 4 p.c. Land Bonds all gained fractions. British Funds turned dull, and 3½ p.c. War Loan gave way to 103⅜.

There was quiet buying of Corporation stocks, and Dublin 3½ p.c. 1955-80 advanced to 94½ and Dublin 4½ p.c. hardened to 104⅝. Among Banks, Hibernians recovered pence to 33/3, but Nationals drooped to 30/6.

Guinness Ord. were quietly maintained at 70/-, but Dublin Distillers "A" shaded off to 4/9 in a small way. In Rails, Great Southern Pref. rose to 9⅞, but the Gtd. slipped back to 29½ and Great Northern Pref. eased to 17½.

Bolands Pref. declined to 11⅜, while other Irish Industrials, where dealt in, were hardly altered.

The feature of British Industrials was the weakness of Tobaccos on the announcement of the British-American Tobacco Co. quarterly dividend of 7d. per share, tax free, as compared with 9d. per share, tax free. B.A.T. Ord. relapsed about 4/9 to 84/- and Imperial Tobacco Ord. fell 1/9 to 91/3. Coats Ord. declined to 31/3 and Courtaulds to 29/7½, but Vickers Ord. hardened to 15/-.

LONDON

LOWER PRICES IN GENERAL

TOBACCO SHARES WERE DULL

With business on a very attenuated scale, the London Stock markets yesterday had a rather dull appearance, prices showing a tendency to sag owing to lack of interest, while in some cases special factors were responsible for lower prices.

Gilt-edged stocks were generally easier. Victory Bonds, Local Loans, and 2½ p.c. and 4 p.c. Consols were all ¼ down, and there were other losses of 1/16 to ⅛.

British Rails did not attract much attention, and the few movements were against holders. Among Foreign Rails few changes occurred.

In the Industrial market "Bats" were a dull feature owing to the reduction in the interim dividend, which the directors state is due to higher income tax and to temporary loss of income from companies in the United States. The arrangement with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to which the directors refer is the pledging of assets against loans, which in turn are passed on to the British Treasury. "Bats" showed a loss of 5/32 at 4 7/32. "Imps" were lower in sympathy at 91/10½.

Uncertainty as to the effect of the clothing coupon ration scheme continued to have a depressing influence upon Stores shares. It is thought in some quarters that the scheme may have more effect upon the volume of trade in the stores than any previous measure, such as the Limitation of Supplies Order. Marks and Spencers were the shares mainly affected yesterday, and there was a loss of 10½d. at 29/7½. Woolworths were only 3d. easier, while Harrods were maintained at 24/-.

Iron and Steel shares were better in places, with Vickers 3d. up at 15/3.

In the Oil market "Shells" were supported on the maintenance of the year's dividend and finished 7½d. to the good at 40/7½.

Mining shares attracted little attention, and, with operators both at the Cape and in London inclined to do nothing, prices tended to sag.

WHY B.A.T. DIVIDEND IS REDUCED

The directors of the British-American Tobacco Company have decided to pay on June 30 an interim dividend of 7d. for each £1 of Ordinary Stock for the year 1940-41 on the issued Ordinary Stock, free of tax.

It is stated that the reduction in the rate of dividend is due partly to the increased rate of United Kingdom income tax, but chiefly to the temporary loss of income from associated companies in the United States following upon the arrangement with the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The last interim was 9d., while a year ago the rate was 10d. per £1 unit of Ordinary Stock.

LIGHT SELLING ON WALL STREET

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

NEW YORK, Wednesday.

With transactions meagre, light selling blocked to-day's recovery on the Stock Exchange. Variations were fractional and the trend was irregular.

The turnover of 430,000 shares comprised 685 issues, of which 282 advanced, 217 declined, and 186 were unchanged.

Steels and Aircrafts showed an improving tendency. Although the final upturn was disappointing, the close was steady.

A block of more than 10,000 British-owned shares in the American Smelting and Refining Company is to be offered over the counter.

THE MONEY MARKET

The chief feature of the Money Market yesterday continued to be the clearing banks' keen appetite for bills, which were inclined to be in short supply. The amount of credit available to the market was more than ample to meet all borrowing requirements, and money was easily obtainable at 1/4½ per cent.

There was no change in silver prices at the fixing yesterday, and both spot and forward remained at 23 7/16d. There was a small amount of selling from production sources to meet trade requirements.

Candour Wanted in G.U.I. Statements

By J. P. ROONEY.

RESPONDING to the toast of the Golfing Union of Ireland at the Castle Club's dinner on Saturday night, my friend, Mr. G. B. Butler, president of the club and former chairman of the Leinster Branch, alluded to the recent abandonment of the Union competitions for the year, and referred to Press criticisms of the action of the Union. Candidly, I did not follow his remarks in that connection. I thought, however (and so, apparently, did others in the room), that he implied that the writers on golf were not quite fair in the attitude they adopted towards the Union.

It is true, as Mr. Butler remarked, that we have to rely, in the main—if not entirely—on the newspapers for news of what is happening in Irish golf; but those who commented on the action of the Union on the Monday evening arranged for the opening matches in the Senior Cup were in no way responsible for the unpleasant reactions that manifested themselves in the clubs and among golfers generally.

As a matter of fact, those reactions revealed themselves in the lounge and clubhouse at Dollymount immediately the decision was announced. We who try to keep golfers in touch with current affairs in Irish golf did not get mixed in our facts, which were placed before readers as they were supplied officially.

It is an unwritten rule of the G.U.I. and its branches (why, goodness only knows) that all information concerning what takes place behind the doors that are closed to golfers generally shall be provided for the ordinary golfer through official channels. If writers on the game think fit to form their own conclusions from the reports thus supplied to them, and express their opinions, as they consider in the interests of the game, that is their business.

No Hostility

There never has been even a sign of hostility towards the governing body or its branches in any section of the Dublin Press. On the contrary, things have been glossed over from time to time that might with advantage to the game and golfers as a body have been handled differently.

Had the first official announcement of the abandonment of the competitions contained a reference to the real reason which influenced the Standing Commitee in coming to their decision all would have been well. The matter would have ended there: we would have heard nothing more about it. But there was no mention of it. We were not told then that the Union competitions had been eliminated from the list as a mark of our sympathy with the golfers of the North, who had suffered so grievously by the bombing of Belfast, an omission that, I know, caused not a little surprise and concern, not in the North, but in high official quarters in the South. Incidentally, there was another reason, but it should not have been even mentioned in connection with the game, as it has nothing whatever to do with it.

But it was not until the blame for the delay in notifying the clubs and players of the decision come to had been shifted for weeks from one to another, and when everyone was criticising the Union for its slowness in getting off their mark that we were let into the secret, as it were, of what really occurred. Then Mr. Alan Kidd, Hon. Secretary of the Union, informed us at the Kilcroney dinner that the competitions were abandoned as a "practical gesture of sympathy with Ulster golfers," and that the delay was caused by the fact that the replies from the Ulster Branch and the members of the Standing Committee had not been received by him until the morning of the day fixed for the beginning of the Senior Cup competition.

Had that statement been made, even without any reference to the shortage of entries from the South and West (Ulster could not, in the circumstances, be expected to take part in the competitions), everyone concerned would have wholeheartedly approved the step taken.

Overlapping

One fact emerged from the muddle: there does not seem to be that co-ordination and co-operation among the Union and its branches that are essential to the thoroughly efficient working of a big organisation like the Golfing Union of Ireland. The branches work smoothly enough; but is there not too much of the Royal and Ancient Club atmosphere elsewhere, and not a little overlapping?

More recently we have had evidence of that overlapping. One of the most important competitions held in the country—the only one of its kind—is the Irish Open Mixed Foursomes Cup at Milltown, which yearly has gone from success to success. When the Open club fixtures were being arranged Milltown were given their dates for their annual carnival, and the committee at once set about making their preparations. Then, after a considerable interval, the committee of the Dublin United Societies announced their date for the qualifying round at Dun Laoghaire as next Monday, the day for the first round of the Milltown Foursomes!

The Societies applied to Mr. Kidd for their date (so I am informed). Explanations followed when the news of the clashing was published—and were accepted by Milltown. Why were they accepted by the club in view of the fact that the playing of the Societies' qualifying round at Dun Laoghaire would certainly affect their entry? There must be many Society men chosen to play at Dun Laoghaire who would like to enter for the Foursomes; but loyalty to their Societies will oblige them to forego the Milltown meeting.

It is such avoidable occurrences that irritate golfers and set them talking; not the comments on current affairs that are penned by writers on the game.

Conn and Louis Sign For Title Fight

NEW YORK, Wednesday.

Joe Louis and Billy Conn, yesterday signed papers for their fifteen rounds heavy-weight bout for the world title held by Louis. The fight will be in New York on June 18th, Mike Jacobs, the promoter, and John Ray, manager of Billy Conn, having met last week to settle final arrangements pending the signatures of the principals.

At the time of signing Conn relinquished all claims to the light-heavy-weight title, for which he has not been beaten. It was understood that he had surrendered this title when a bout with Louis was first suggested, Conn from that time having put on weight in his preparation for the meeting with Louis.

HOPE OF RACING AT LIVERPOOL

Although Liverpool was not included among the latest list of fixtures issued by the Jockey Club, it is understood that there is hope of holding a meeting there later in the year, at which there will be both flat racing and jumping.

A list of National Hunt fixtures is being compiled for the approval of the Government Departments concerned. It will probably be on fairly generous lines, averaging about three days' racing a week.

Greyhound Racing

Stylish Hurdling at Shelbourne Park

Backers of favourites had a lot the better of it last night at Shelbourne Park after a nasty reverse when the 7 to 1 chance, Cranna Sailor, won the opening event from the much fancied Tillage Boy; but several of the finishes in which they were concerned were extremely close. The really exciting race was the sprint, which went to Flying Clipper, who, quickest to begin, led all the way, but had a desperate set-to with Cheerful Turn, whom he beat by only the shortest of short heads in 20.26 secs. An excellent hurdling performance also was that of Rathard Steak. Taking the first flight in his stride, he was never in trouble, gradually widened the gap between himself, Crossacool and Missing Money, and won by four lengths. Equally stylish was the hurdling of Fiallach, who going to the front on the inside immediately after the start, clung on cleverly to his position to score by a length from Baytown Mystery, who made a bold bid for it in the straight. Broken Wall, in the Shelbourne Stake, delayed his effort until almost too late, but in the last few strides overhauled Dim Vision to get the verdict by a length.

525 YARDS.—CRANNA SAILOR (1), 7 to 1, 1; Tillage Boy (3), 5 to 2, 2; Buttoneen (4), 5 to 2, 3. Also—Roman Son (6), 3 to 1; Rambling Outlaw (5), 3 to 1; Brave Jester (2), 5 to 1. 1l., 2l. 31.91.

LANDSCAPES AND FLOWERS
MR. RAKOCZI'S EXHIBITION

An exhibition of landscape and flower paintings by Basil Rakoczi was opened yesterday at the Picture Hire Club, Molesworth street, Dublin, and will be continued until June 17th. About forty pictures are on view, and many have not been seen before.

The first impression conveyed by this collection of Mr. Rakoczi's work is that the artist has a new outlook and is struggling to overcome subjective tendencies, which hitherto have been the guiding influence in his approach to art. For the most part he reveals in these works a response to visual impression and a frank desire to state each case as it is. There is the suggestion of a breaking away from theoretical preconceptions and the seeming declaration of a desire to rejoice in freedom from the modernist convention. Some of the pictures are really attractive, but in these, even, as often in his landscapes, Mr. Rakoczi depreciates a composition by too flagrant a lining-in, as it were, of the "anatomy" of his subject, and a denial of the colourfulness which must have been the primal influence in awakening his artistic emotion.

The pictures which, perhaps, create the main interest of the show are Nos. 2, 4, 10, 16, 18, 20, 23 and 32, but that is a matter of individual feeling, while in No. 26—"Peasant Women"—which has been seen before, there is possibly the most appealing pronouncement of Mr. Rakoczi's sympathies and ability to state them.

Mr. Lennox Robinson formally declared the show open.

SONG AND PIANO RECITAL.
MUSICAL FEAST AT ABERDEEN HALL

It was a pity that the recital of piano and vocal music given in the Aberdeen Hall of the Gresham Hotel, Dublin, last night should have taken place on a mid-summer date. It was one of the most enjoyable musical events of the year, and those who elected to spend their evening indoor had rich reward. The artists were Marion Davies and Michael O'Higgins in songs and Renee Collinson in pianoforte pieces. The programme opened with a group of German and Italian works sung by Mr. O'Higgins, who found here a grand field for his interpretative skill. Mozart's "My Lady is so Charming" was beautifully painted. Handel's "O Sleep, Why Dost Thou Leave Me?" was delightful both for its atmosphere and for the admirable control of phrasing. The singer's easy mastery of tone was well brought out in the very descriptive treatment of "Verheissung," by the late Colonel Fritz Brasé. Schumann's "Mondnacht" was a splendid demonstration of the use of the mezza voce. In a later group Mr. O'Higgins sang songs by present-day Irish composers. Of these, "O Forest Bird," by Frederick May, and "Myrra's Song," by Michael Bowles, revealed the imaginative gifts of these young men in the realm of composition. Very descriptive, too, was "The Cormrant," by Dr. J. F. Larchet.

Marion Davies created a profound impression by her singing during the recent opera season at the Capitol Theatre, and by her singing of operatic arias last night she stamped herself as an artiste of exceptional parts in this sphere. She was particularly satisfying in her singing of the exacting recitation and aria, "Be not afraid" and "My days are spent," from Mozart's Magic Flute. Her's is a voice eminently suitable for coloratura, and she took the intricate runs with ease and grace, even the top F in alt coming well in her reach. Later she sang a group which included songs by Hugo Wolf, Beethoven and Schubert, and showed that she is also very much at home in Lieder.

Duets by Miss Davies and Mr. O'Higgins provided a capital finish. The singers' accompaniments were played by Miss Jeannie Reddin with a skill and sympathy that were of immense support to the singers.

Renee Collinson is a young French pianiste who has already won appreciation from the discerning pianoforte lovers in the city. Last night in her programme she proved herself a recitalist of brilliant parts. Her reading of the big Prelude Choral and Fugue of Caesar Franck was strikingly illuminating. Later she played with great brilliance the Chopin Scherzo in C sharp minor, Schumann's attractive Novelette in D major, and the descriptive Toccata in F major by Saint-Saëns.

The Kaiser

The death in exile at Doorn of Wilhelm of Hohenzollern, formerly King of Prussia and German Emperor, will recall vivid memories to those who survive of the generation that grew up before the Great War of 1914-18. To them Wilhelm of Hohenzollern was "the Kaiser"—the man who was regarded popularly as the instigator of the world war, whose vaulting ambition and overweening vanity undoubtedly contributed in part, at any rate, to the condition of affairs that precipitated that appalling conflict. Wilhelm of Hohenzollern was one of those international figures of whom it might be said, in Housman's words, that "the name died before the man." He was one of the most colourful and romantic characters of modern times. Born with a physical defect, he was handicapped from the start by an inferiority complex, which gave him the appearance of an aggressive bully, whereas, in fact, he was quite the reverse. As a young man he found himself suddenly pitchforked into power. He was a man of vigorous personality, who soon fell foul of the great Bismarck. He was a grandson of Queen Victoria, whom he idolised; but he could not stand his "Uncle Bertie," then Prince of Wales, and afterwards King Edward VII. Having got rid of Bismarck, the Kaiser, who was a sincere believer in the divine right of kings, proceeded to take the fullest advantage of his position as an absolute monarch. He had inherited from his ill-fated father the Empire of the first Wilhelm, victor of Sedan, and he determined to build a Greater Germany on the foundations that had been laid at Versailles in 1871. By nature Wilhelm of Hohenzollern was essentially a man of peace; but he acquired such an intense hatred of his English uncle that war between Germany and Great Britain soon became inevitable. During the Boer War he sent the famous telegram to President Kruger, which caused deep resentment in England. When Queen Victoria died and King Edward came to the British Throne, his jealousy of his uncle broke all bounds. King Edward was a breezy type of man, who regarded his pompous nephew with a kind of indulgent disdain. He made no secret of his views, and when the two monarchs met on occasion King Edward patronised the Kaiser with obvious intent. It soon became clear that war between Germany and Great Britain could be only a matter of time. The Kaiser, who was surrounded by a group of sycophants, including the notorious Eulenburg, and fell more and more under the influence of von Tirpitz, made war inevitable when he announced that Germany's future lay on the sea, thereby throwing down an open challenge to the British Navy. He was headstrong, and he was obstinate. He allowed himself to be outwitted by men such as Holstein, the Eminence Grise of the Wilhelmstrasse; and, although he had a genuine dread of war, he manœuvred himself into a position from which there was no retreat.

It seems a long time now since the Daily Telegraph interview of 1908, which was one of the greatest diplomatic gaffes of all time. It also seems more than a lifetime since the Kaiser had a breach made in the walls of Jerusalem, which he entered as the Protector of Islam. Those were the high lights of Kaiser Wilhelm's pre-war career. He would not listen to Bismarck. He would not listen even to von Bülow. He was determined to "gang his own gait," whithersoever it might lead, until, finally, he became so much obsessed by the idea of Germany's might, and his own infallibility, that he seemed to lose all sense of responsibility. At the time he was blamed universally for the precipitation of the war of 1914; actually, events outstripped him, and there is small doubt now that, if he had been a stronger man, he would not have allowed his military advisers to force him into a false position. His correspondence with the Russian Tsar—the famous "Willy-Nicky" correspondence—suggests that the Kaiser was honestly anxious to avoid war; but he had delivered himself, bound hand and foot, into the hands of the soldiers and Grossadmiral Tirpitz, with the result that when the fateful moment arrived he was helpless. History will deliver judgment on his subsequent actions. As the war progressed, and German arms seemed to be victorious on every front, the Kaiser allowed his proper functions to be usurped more and more by the Oberste Heeresleitung, or, in other words, by General Ludendorff. Control slipped gradually out of his fingers. He became a mere tool in the hands of the military and naval men. He consented to the dismissal of Bethmann-Hollweg, and to the steady growth of military influence in civil affairs. When the end came in 1918, much against his own will—for nobody could say that Wilhelm of Hohenzollern was a coward—he allowed himself to be persuaded by Hindenburg to escape into Holland, thus damning himself for ever in the eyes of a large section of the German people. He is dead now; but he lived long enough to see the uprise of a new Germany, far stronger than anything of which he ever dreamt. The Germany of Adolf Hitler, in many respects, is the very antithesis of the Hohenzollern Germany; for the Kaiser was a staunch believer in aristocracy, and his spiritual home was in the Herrenklub. During the last years of his exile at Doorn, Wilhelm of Hohenzollern must have suffered agonies of spirit. He was far too old to accommodate himself to the changed conditions in Germany. To him, the very idea of Socialism—National or otherwise—was anathema. It was associated in his mind with Maximilian Harden and the Zukunft, with the weak-kneed Scheidemann, with Ebert, the saddler; with everything that he and his sainted grandmother, Victoria of England, loathed. Wilhelm of Hohenzollern was the last of Europe's absolute kings. As a monarch, he was a tragic failure; as a man, he had qualities which even his enemies must admire.

Economy on the Air

Some day the Minister for Posts and Telegraphs will have the grace to stand forth and say outright that his broadcasting system's sole function is to help to balance the Budget. He estimates that it will cost £70,595 during the financial year, and that the sale of licences will bring approximately £115,500 to the Exchequer, representing a pleasant little profit of almost £45,000. This profit would be ample to allow of several hours' more broadcasting in the day, of decent payment to artists, and of the sorely needed augmenting of the station orchestra—even, for that matter, of a duplicate station orchestra—but ordinary considerations of quid pro quo do not enter the mind of the Minister for Posts and Telegraphs. If similarly bad value were given in a shop, its customers would refuse to patronise it, and the shop would collapse from want of business; but the Minister occupies a privileged position, because his customers must pay licence fees if they wish to possess receiving sets, and must possess receiving sets in order to hear the better programmes from other countries. When Mr. P. J. Little presented his remarkable estimate to Dail Eireann yesterday, he had not the grace to blush—probably because he has listened to so many complaints against the quality of Radio Athlone's programmes that he has become case-hardened. It is time, indeed, that the Irish people arranged something in the nature of an organised demand for longer and, in virtually every respect, better programmes. The annual saving of £40,000 makes little or no difference to the general Budget, being more than counterbalanced by the wastage in any one of half-a-dozen departments of State; but it would make all the difference in the world to the broadcasting service, and the people have a right to expect that it shall be so employed. We do not deny that the programmes have been improved, to some extent, within the last year or two: "external" broadcasts, for example, appear to be more frequent; but the improvement has been very slight, and has been outweighed in value by the shortening of programme hours. It is wrong that the broadcasting system of a European State—a neutral State, for that matter—should be in operation for only six hours a day, when virtually every other State is, or has been, able to provide all-day programmes. Is the Irish housewife's afternoon so full of joyous activity that she would not be glad to have the radio cheer her at her work or in her leisure?

We hold no brief for the programmes of the British Broadcasting Corporation; yet we would undertake a modest wager that, if the Minister could arrange a surprise descent on any hundred houses, selected at random throughout the country, he would find that 70 per cent. of them had their receiving sets tuned in to the B.B.C. That is not because the B.B.C.'s programmes are especially good, but because those of Radio Eireann are especially bad. Does the Minister not realise that there is a great and growing demand for wireless reception in this country? If so, can he, as a patriot, view without misgiving the people's dependence on external sources for their wireless entertainment? A great deal, both of sense and of nonsense, has been talked in Ireland about the necessity to keep "foreign influences" at bay; yet the people are encouraged by their own Government's parsimony to expose themselves voluntarily to the most powerful instrument of "foreign influence." People would listen to Radio Eireann, virtually to the exclusion of any other station, if it was worth while; but, as matters stand, they get better value elsewhere. Compare the average B.B.C. "talk" with the average Radio Eireann "talk." How admirably composed is the one, as a rule; how prosaic and lacking in stimulation, as a rule, is the other! The material for "talks" is here in abundance; there is an abundance of men capable of delivering them; but what man will consent to spend hours upon the careful preparation of a first-class "talk" for the meagre recompense that Radio Eireann allows him? Dozens of first-rate musicians are walking the streets of Dublin; they have stormed the doors of Radio Eireann a hundred times, in vain. "The urgent need for the exercise of the strictest economy in expenditure"—these are Mr. Little's words—forbids engagements to be made for them, and, even if the engagements were made for a chosen few, they would be at virtually starvation rates. Somebody ought to impress upon our Government the fact that good work cannot be obtained except in return for good money: that, moreover, the public pays the piper, and has a right to call the tune. Such unpopularity as that of the present service is dearly bought by an economy of £45,000.

London Town

The Royal Institute of British Architects has arranged an exhibition of maps of London which was opened recently in Portland Place. According to a report in The Times, the maps and plans included in the exhibition cover a period of almost four hundred years, from the sixteenth century to the present day, or, rather, up to the beginning of the war. Many of the maps are extremely old and valuable, and in most cases these have been replaced by facsimiles for the sake of safety. The earliest exhibit is Ralph Agas's semi-pictorial plan of the city about the year 1560, or, in other words, about the time when Good Queen Bess was at the height of her power. Thus, the Londoners can examine a map which shows London as Queen Elizabeth knew it, and which, with a slight stretch of imagination, might even show the exact spot where Sir Walter Raleigh performed the quixotic and memorable action of putting his cloak in the mud so that the Queen could keep her feet dry. The exhibits of a slightly later period include panoramas by Visscher and Hollar, drawn in the seventeenth century, at a time when London meant merely the city and Westminster was a separate entity. Although London continually was spreading, one map drawn as late as 1790 shows the country encroaching on the city as far as Paddington, and a map dated 1835 shows a proposed scheme for the laying of the first railway, which, it was intended, should run around London in a circle at a distance of about three and a half miles from St. Paul's Cathedral. Other maps show London before and after the Great Fire, and show that, although many schemes for the replanning of the city were submitted, the new London was built along very similar lines to the old city. There is a strange fascination about maps of any kind, but this collection should be more than usually interesting. Most people are interested in old maps and plans of places with which they are familiar; indeed, in the National Gallery, the Malton prints of Old Dublin probably excite more interest than any of the other exhibits in the Gallery, and even these prints are comparatively recent. In London at the present time, however, the exhibition should strengthen the moral of the people as well as merely interesting them; for it will show them that, although their city has been severely damaged during the past year, it has suffered severe damage and has undergone marked changes many times in the past, and has survived them all as the London they know and love.

LONDON LETTER

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
WEDNESDAY NIGHT.

THE clothing coupon scheme appears to be going well, and people are accepting it with equanimity, if not enthusiasm. Many little difficulties have become apparent, but it is understood that the Board of Trade will give consideration to these and that they will be adjusted where it is possible. The multiple stores are rather badly hit, and it was noticed yesterday that coupon counters were boldly marked with the announcement that, as nothing could be bought without a coupon, the time of the attendants should not be wasted. It is feared that there will be no sale for the countless thousands of summer dresses costing a few shillings, since they come into the scheme, and people will hesitate before they give up their coupons for such wear. Another point is wool for knitting; but, if people desire to obtain wool for making comforts, they can obtain it from the recognised bodies.

Few Summer Sales

The reserve of wearable clothing in the possession of the people must be enormous. Yesterday I asked several men how they stood, and in most cases the answer was that they had enough clothes to carry them on for months to come, and that they had no need to go shabby. In Savill row, the home of the high-class tailor, there is alarm, and it is rumoured that a number of firms are likely to close down sooner than they would have done. Summer sales will be a thing of the past, as most of them are being cancelled, since it is anticipated that there will be no demand for the goods usually sold. The people who will benefit mostly from the scheme are the second-hand dealers.

Less to Spend

"Paying for the War" is the title of a very interesting pamphlet by Mr. Geoffrey Crowther, editor of the Economist, and it is worth perusal by all who watch the course of events. Mr. Crowther mentions that the British national income is about six thousand million pounds, and of this the State takes about one thousand two hundred millions at present, leaving four thousand eight hundred millions for the private expenditure of the public. It is probable that the income will rise to seven thousand millions, while the State will need four thousand millions, thus reducing the public expenditure to three thousand millions. This suggests that the public expenditure must be reduced to three thousand millions, or approaching a third of the present figure. Mr. Crowther says that the reduction must be made, the only alternative to increased taxation or borrowing being inflation, the most inequitable method of all. These conclusions reveal the wisdom of the coupon system for clothing, and, should that prove successful, it is not beyond the bounds of possibility that the system may be extended in other directions.

Haulage Scheme

The intimation that a big road haulage scheme on a national scale is being arranged by a limited company comes as a surprise, since most people supposed that any such co-ordinating scheme would be a State affair, this having been frequently called for in the House of Commons, where there are great objections to anything in the nature of a monopoly. This feeling has gradually been growing, and there is a suggestion that all forms of transport embracing railways, road transport, the use of canals and sea coastal traffic should be brought under the control of the State. It is pointed out that the Government possesses all the necessary powers to carry out such a plan, and there are hopes that it will give the matter serious consideration.

No Beer Shortage

A rumour that there would be a shortage of beer has been received with disquietude in some circles, but there is no need for alarm, since it is stated with official backing that there will be no change for the present, although less barley will be allocated to the brewery trade. The brewers made a voluntary reduction of 10 per cent. in February, when it was agreed that there should be no restriction of output generally. The trade has fairly good stocks of barley in hand, and is able to carry on at the present rate. Some of the stronger beers have not been made of late, but it is agreed that it would be unwise to make the cheaper beers weaker, since it would give the public ground for dissatisfaction.

Big Ben Silent

Many thousands of listeners must have noticed that the chimes of Big Ben were not heard on the wireless last night, the explanation being that the clock had stopped and that it was not possible to attend to it during the hours of black-out. As soon as it was daylight to-day experts made an examination, and found that a workman who had been engaged on repairs to the face, which was damaged in a recent raid, had left his hammer in such a position as to interfere with the working of the clock, which stopped at 10.13 p.m. The clock could have been started soon after half-past 7 this morning, but it was decided to wait until 10.13 a.m., so that working could be resumed without interfering with the hands. This stoppage of twelve hours is the longest rest Big Ben has had in the eighty years of its existence.

AN IRISHMAN'S DIARY

Called Up

My friend Major Niall MacNeill, son of Eoin MacNeill, has recently been recalled to the colours. He is a cousin of Major-General Hugo MacNeill, whose appointment to command a big Army formation was announced last week.

Niall MacNeill is a soldier with the qualities required in a war like the present. Without being "un-neutral," he is an admirer of German military thoroughness, and a vigorous critic of obsolete methods. He is President of the Irish Motor Racing Club, so that it is not surprising to learn that one of his particular bete noir is the "cavalry mind."

If this country ever is involved in the war, I expect him to be one of our most competent commanders in the field. Strange to say, his job in civilian life is rather a staid one. He is in charge of the Ordnance Survey Department in the Phœnix Park, not far from where the bomb dropped the other morning.

Forage Caps

A Group Leader in the L.D.F. tells me that, in an effort to make his Group as smart as possible in appearance, he tried to regulate the angle of its members' forage caps. The experiment ended in complete failure.

Everybody had been accustomed to wear his cap at a different angle. Some wore it almost horizontally, others bolt upright. Some tilted it so far forward that it almost obscured the right eye; in other cases it hung precariously to the back of the head. My acquaintance was heartbroken.

He attempted, as I say, to prescribe a uniform angle of tilt, with the result that, as soon as the men clicked to attention, the caps of half of them fell off. He tried another angle, and they looked uneasy. Finally, he thought he had succeeded, and the parade dismissed. But when the men turned up again a day or two later, their caps were as un-uniform as ever.

He has given it up. It might be possible, he says, if a cap could be specially tailored to every individual head, but heads vary too much in size and shape for mass-produced caps. Some heads have a flat top and others a round top; some, even, have a dint in the summit. Semi-baldness will permit what a bushy crop of hair will not, and vice versa.

I suggested that he might experiment with safety-pins, or a few inches of elastic, cunningly concealed, but the proposal was received with contempt.

'Tip" from Belfast

Lord Glentoran was not at Baldoyle races at Whitsuntide, but a big number of Belfast men were—most of them, I should imagine, from a different political camp from that to which the popular northern sportsman belongs.

Mr. David Frame was said to be confident that Cratloe Castle would win the Claremont Plate, and his horse was a "hot" favourite; but Belfast men whispered to their friends that nothing would beat Lord Glentoran's Dunseverick—winner of the Madrid Plate at the Curragh, it may be recalled.

Dunseverick won all right, and comfortably at that. I wonder does Lord Glentoran, who is a stalwart of the Unionist Party, give "tips" to his Nationalist friends. I suspect that there are none to whom he would talk racing more willingly.

When Actors Struck

The proposed trade union for Irish actors reminds me, writes a correspondent, of a wonderful benefit performance I attended in New York, in aid of Equity, the American theatrical artists' Trade Union. It was between 1918-1921, when Equity was carrying on a strike to better the conditions in the profession.

Among the famous stars who appeared at the benefit were John and Ethel Barrymore, in the balcony scene from "Romeo and Juliet." Many of the leading variety artists of the day contributed to the programme, and, as they were all at the top of their form, their impromptu jokes on topical subjects made it a memorable night.

Principals, chorus and ballet of one Broadway show after another, involved in the dispute, came on the stage in their workaday clothes to get a wild ovation, but what brought down the house was when the cast of "Lightnin'," a popular musical comedy, were introduced by the compère with the words "Ladies and gentlemen! 'Lightnin'' has struck."

The high light of the evening was a clever parody of Mark Antony's speech from "Julius Cæsar," in which Mark Antony, a strike leader, addressed a full company of theatrical strikers from all over New York.

"Fra Diavilo"

Passing one of our large advertisement hoardings (says a correspondent) in the neighbourhood of Westland Row, I saw that some film or other was advertised under the name of "Fra Diavilo" in letters about four feet high.

At the time I thought it was wrong, but I assumed that the poster, which must naturally have been checked by dozens of proof readers or their equivalents, just couldn't be wrong. Nevertheless, the name jarred, and the first opportunity I received I looked it up.

The poster was wrong, beyond all shadow of doubt. All over town the word is written up, and in each case it is spelt correctly, with the one exception. Did the painter notice that it was wrong, but hesitate to repaint four feet of colour, or did he just paint the thing and walk away without looking at it?

At all events, it would give visitors—if there are any—the impression that the Irish are as illiterate a nation as we are cracked up to be.

POLICE OFFICERS UNFIT TO HOLD THEIR POSTS

STATEMENT BY MINISTER

"VERY SERIOUS SITUATION"

WHEN the debate on the Vote for the Department of Justice was resumed yesterday,

Mr. COGAN (Ind. Farmer, Wicklow) said that in many divisions senior officers of the Civic Guard were permitted to remain in the one division for too long. He suggested State housing schemes for the Guards in the bigger towns.

Mr. E. KISSANE (F.F., Kerry) suggested that more machinery should be provided for the conduct of cases in Irish in the courts. He paid a tribute to the Civic Guards for the manner in which they had organised the Local Security Force.

Alderman A. BYRNE (Ind., Dublin) supported the tribute that had been paid to the Civic Guards.

DISTRICT JUSTICES' PETROL

Mr. MEANEY (F.F., Cork, East) alleged that some District Justices were not holding their courts as often as formerly on the ground of the small amount of petrol that was allowed them, and he viewed that as a very bad example to the people.

Mr. J. VICTORY (F.F., Athlone-Longford) said that some Justices had declared that if they did not get petrol they would not attend the courts, while others said that if their courts were not put in a proper state of repair they would refuse to sit in them. He suggested that the Dail should take steps to investigate court procedure and the scales of costs, as the poor person to-day could not get justice because of the prohibitive costs.

"SOME SENIOR GARDAI OFFICERS"

Replying to the points raised in the debate Mr. G. BOLAND, Minister for Justice, said that he realised that the housing problem among the Garda Force was fairly urgent. The matter of costs and court procedure was a matter for legislation. Justices who made complaints had not done so in a proper way, and did not do them any good.

In regard to the matter raised by Deputy Mulcahy, the MINISTER said that it was, unfortunately, true that there were senior Gardai officers who were unfit to hold their posts. There was no doubt whatever about that, and it represented a very serious situation. The Gardai, the general public, the Local Security Force and the Local Defence Force were seriously affected by it.

TWO NEW ORDERS

It would be necessary to bring in two orders, one of which would have to be passed by both Houses and one laid on the table, and when these were under consideration the House would have an opportunity of discussing the matter. He thought that General Mulcahy, in raising the matter, had made a very good contribution to the security of the State. He hoped that very many of these officers would not have to be dealt with. If a few were dealt with it would bring home to the rest of them that they should have a full sense of responsibility and of what was expected of them.

The vote was agreed to.

NEW BILLS

Leave was given Deputies J. A. Costello (F.G., Dublin Townships) and J. M. Dillon (F.G., Monaghan) to introduce the third amendment of the Constitution Bill, 1941, and the second stage was fixed for next week.

Leave was also given to Mr. Costello and Mr. P. McGilligan (F.G., Dublin, N.W.) to introduce the Law of Torts (Miscellaneous Reforms) Bill, 1941—a measure to amend the law relating to the liability of husbands for the torts and obligations of their wives, and relating to proceedings against and contributions between tort feasors, and relating to the apportionment of damages in actions for libel and slander.

POST OFFICE ESTIMATE

Introducing the estimate for the Department of Posts and Telegraphs, Mr. P. J. LITTLE, Minister for Posts and Telegraphs, said that the net Post Office expenditure for the year 1941-42 was estimated at £2,515,143, representing a net increase of £27,708 on the provision for 1940-41. The gross increase was approximately £53,300. There had been quite a substantial drop in revenue during the past 12 months. It was estimated that, as compared with 1939-40, the decrease would amount to about £82,000. Postal earnings were down by about £124,000, the main causes being the cessation of the major activities of the Irish Hospitals' Trust, the falling-off in cross-Channel correspondence by reason of business restrictions arising from supply and transport difficulties, the serious curtailment of the foreign mail services, etc. As against the decline in postal earnings there was an increase of about £40,000 in telephone and of £2,000 in telegraph receipts, leaving a net decrease in revenue on the three services of approximately £82,000 for 1940-41.

Of the three main services—postal, telegraph and telephone—the figures indicated that the postal and telephone services, taken together, showed at the end of the year 1939-1940 a surplus of £129,113, but that, counteracting this, there was a loss on the telegraphs of £141,562. Although the revenue from the three services had improved by approximately £13,700 as compared with 1938-1939, expenditure had risen by approximately £77,500.

TELEGRAPH SERVICE

The net result was that the surplus on the three services of £51,321, which existed at the end of 1938-1939, had been converted at the end of 1939-1940 into a deficit of £12,449. Regrettable as this was, he was afraid that, when the accounts for 1940-1941 were available, the deficit will be found to have increased, because, combined with the drop in revenue already referred to, there had been growing expenditure on all services. In the case of the external services, however, further material disimprovements had taken place.

Continuing, Mr. Little said:—The financial condition of the telegraph service is unfortunately becoming steadily worse. Traffic continues to decline, the number of originating messages having dropped by about 60,000. The decline in traffic was the result, in part, of disturbed business conditions, but mainly of the growing popularity of the telephone. In relation to the increasing unprofitableness of the telegraphs, he thought it well to say that reduction of rates, which was frequently suggested, would prove no remedy.

THE TELEPHONE

There was a substantial development in the telephone service during the past year. The number of local calls in 1940 was 34,200,000—an increase of 878,000 over the number for the previous year. The number of trunk calls was 4,247,000, an increase of 334,000. The total number of subscribers' lines at the end of 1940 was 29,243, an increase of 446 on the figures at the end of the previous year. The total number of telephones in use was 45,382, an increase of 1,120. The number of automatic telephones in the Dublin and Dun Laoghaire areas was now 24,843, an increase of 1,795. Thirty-six new exchanges and 17 new public call offices—including 4 street kiosks—were opened last year. There were now 836 exchanges and 1,510 call offices, including 152 street kiosks.

Work was in progress on the installation of a new Central Trunk Exchange in Exchequer street, Dublin, with equipment of the most up-to-date type. It is the intention later to provide an additional exchange in St. Andrew street linked with Exchequer street, and that, ultimately, the trunks should be wholly removed from the Crown Alley Exchange, which would then function solely as an automatic exchange for local service. Subscribers connected to the Ballsbridge exchange were being transferred to the automatic system. Telephone service between Eire and Great Britain had been very detrimentally affected by war conditions, but that matter was not in the control of this Administration.

THE COMING YEAR

The programme for the coming year, if it proved possible to carry it out in full, would cost about £144,000, of which approximately £54,000 would be for automatics; £51,000 for additional lines, £9,000 for additional high efficiency "carrier" circuits, £6,000 for new overhead trunks, and £7,000 on underground developments, etc.

The Department had under consideration schemes for the enlargement of the district office at James's street, Dublin; for the erection of a new district office near the Garda Barracks, Whitehall, Drumcondra; for an extension of office accommodation at Thurles, and for structural alterations at the head office at Cork, to enable a new telephone exchange to be installed and the public office to be improved.

PEOPLE'S SAVINGS

The Savings Bank deposits during the twelve months ended December 31 last amounted to a total of £3,226,700, an increase of £709,170 over the previous year. Withdrawals amounted to £2,312,050, an increase of £221,362. The increase on the balance held on behalf of ordinary depositors, including interest of £277,576, earned during the year, amounted to £1,192,220.

In accordance with the provisions of the Finance Act, 1940, Trustee Savings Bank money, which was formerly transferred to the National Debt Commissioners, London, had, since November 21 last, been paid into a special account of the Minister for Finance at the Bank of Ireland, and invested by way of deposit in the Post Office Savings Bank. A sum of £190,100 was so invested during the period ended March 31 last.

The provision in respect of civil aviation and meteorological services amounted to £43,020, an increase of £3,475 over last year.

THE FILLING OF POSTS

Mr. W. NORTON (Labour, Carlow-Kildare) complained that a large number of vacancies which existed in the postal service were not being filled, and that persons who had been filling positions in the Post Office for upwards of fifteen years, and who, in a temporary capacity, had been carrying out the position of doorkeeper, were, he said, passed over when the permanent appointments were being made to the position of doorkeeper, and political friends of the Minister, who had no previous experience of the work, were appointed.

The MINISTER, in reply, said that temporary postmen had obtained a fair proportion of vacancies for storekeepers.

The estimate was agreed to.

£70,000 FOR BROADCASTING

Introducing the estimate for wireless broadcasting, the Minister for Posts and Telegraphs, Mr. P. J. LITTLE said that the amount of the estimate, at £70,595, showed a decrease of £55. Reception of short wave programmes was, on the whole, unsatisfactory; these had been suspended for the time being. Broadcasting revenue amounted to £125,000. Revenue in 1940-1941 from licences was £109,500, and from advertisements and miscellaneous receipts £16,000. Revenue from licences in the coming year was estimated at £112,500. The total number of licences on March 31st was 182,694—an increase of about 13,000.

The position regarding advertising programmes was that owing to developing difficulties in regard to supplies of raw materials the revenue from advertisements in the current year was not now considered likely to exceed £3,000, or one-third of the sum originally expected. The sponsored programmes were confined to Irish registered organisations, excluding the wholesale and retail distributive trades and makers of patent medicines, cosmetics and alcohol.

PROGRAMME HOURS

A certain amount of interference with Radio Athlone continued; no material improvement could be hoped for until the war ended. Programme hours had been shortened by about six hours a week, and there had been an increase of recorded programmes. He hoped to arrange for some public concerts next season. News had been given particular attention. There was good ground for thinking that the news bulletins of Radio Eireann were now followed with considerable interest not only within the country, but even in places outside.

The need of developing the purely Irish aspects of the programmes was constantly in mind. Special Irish musical programmes were given nightly, as well as Irish plays, talks, etc. The production of drama and dramatisation in Irish suffered from the lack of creative writers and competent actors and producers, and especially the difficulty of producing plays in the Irish language which were suitable for radio production. Music constituted 54 per cent. of the total programmes. Encouragement was given to Irish musicians to supply the need for new compositions and arrangements, and good fees were paid for performing rights. He intended to develop the policy of encouraging those who were competent to do work of this kind.

NEWS BULLETINS

Mr. M. BRENNAN asked was the station tied down to one wave-length, or could this be changed in an emergency. Generally speaking, he did not find fault with the programmes; he thought they did fairly well, but more attention should be paid to the news. It was a disgrace that they had only one news bulletin on Sunday.

Mr. R. CORISH (Labour, Wexford) stressed the importance of Sunday news. Irish news should get preference in the news bulletins. They got the war news from England, and a re-hash of it from Radio Eireann forty minutes later. Irish news should be given preference, because everyone was "sick of war news," and no one believed any of it. Each part of the country should, he said, get its share of "Question Time."

Dr. J. HANNIGAN (Ind., Dublin, South) said that he was afraid that there was a general tendency to ignore the native station and to listen more and more to foreign stations.

WRITERS' FEES

Mr. J. McCANN (F.F., Dublin, South) said that, while there was an improvement in the fees paid to writers, they were such that they would not attract the best writers. The Irish station was not businesslike, had no showmanship behind it, and was just another Government Department. Why should it be that advertisers should be charged a maximum of £220 an hour while a script writer received £3 3s. for the same period?

Mr. LITTLE, replying, said that it was impossible to give details as to how it was proposed to cope with any emergency that might arise as regards broadcasting. Deputies might be assured that every effort would be made to ensure continuance of the broadcast service. The question of an early Sunday news bulletin would be carefully examined. As regards greater time to agriculture, he did not think farmers would like lectures for breakfast, dinner and tea. There was no set rule about giving Irish news first. Irish news was given first when it was of the first importance.

He promised that the other suggestions made would be carefully considered.

QUESTIONS IN THE DAIL

SALE OF IMPORTED WHITE FLOUR

Those who sold or imported white flour were breaking the law, and he did not propose to fix a price for imported flour, said Mr. LEMASS, Minister for Supplies, in reply to a question put by Mr. W. Norton (Labour, Carlow-Kildare) in the Dail yesterday.

Mr. LEMASS said that a standard price had been fixed by order for all flour produced in the country, and the manufacture of white flour was prohibited. He did not propose to fix a maximum retail price for white flour, but his Department would investigate complaints received regarding prices charged by retailers. To date investigations which had been completed had disclosed no undue profits to retailers.

Mr. NORTON — How can the Minister say that when flour brought in from outside is sold at £6 10s. to £7 10s. a sack of 240 lbs.?

Mr. LEMASS said that any white flour being sold here was coming solely from Northern Ireland. Those who sold, those who bought and those who imported it were breaking the law now in force in that area.

The State here had taken action which would secure to every citizen flour at a fixed price. White flour must be regarded as a luxury, and the fact that it was imported for sale here was doing no one any harm.

RAW MATERIALS

In reply to Mr. J. Hurley (Lab., Cork), who asked the Minister for External Affairs what steps had been taken by diplomatic or consular representatives of this country to arrange the supply to this country of essential raw materials in exchange for wool, hides, live animals, beer, spirits, etc., Mr. LEMASS said that the deputy could rest assured that every possible step in this connection had been taken in consultation with the departments concerned.

OTHER REPLIES

Other information given in replies to questions was that no undertaking of any kind had been given by the Government that a scheme of family allowances would be introduced.

The Minister for Supplies sees no likelihood of being able to increase the tea ration in the near future.

It was the present intention that available coal supplies, to be distributed through the normal channels, would continue, with due regard to the availability of alternative fuels; but it should be clearly understood that circumstances might arise which might prevent any coal being available for household purposes in any area. Owing to the improbability of the supply of such fuel being equal to the demand, it was of importance that local effort to create and lay in fuel stocks should not be relaxed.

Proposals for legislation to provide pensions for E.S.B. employés was being considered, and it was hoped to introduce a bill before the House adjourned this summer.

The increase in the amounts payable for dependents to recipients of unemployment benefits announced by the Minister for Finance in his Budget statement would be brought into operation at an early date.

STATE SOLICITOR'S EXPLANATION

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

DUNDALK, Wednesday.

There was a sequel in Dundalk District Court to-day to the incident of a week ago when the State Solicitor for County Louth (Mr. J. B. Hamill) was ordered out of the court by District Justice Goff.

At to-day's sitting Mr. Hamill stated that he should not have used the expressions which he had used on that occasion. He was then under the impression that the Justice had accused him of being late in the conduct of his cases, and he resented this. He realised now that such a suggestion was not made, and he apologised for the occurrence.

District Justice Goff said that the matter was not a personal one. While he and the solicitors were birds of passage, the Court was one of the institutions of the State, and must be respected. He and Mr. Hamill had been very great friends for years, and the affair was now entirely closed.

HELY'S FINANCIAL STRENGTH

BUDGET AND BONUS SCHEME AFFECT PROFITS

The forty-fifth annual general meeting of Hely's, Ltd., was held yesterday at the offices, 28 Dame street, Dublin, Mr. George A. Thompson (Chairman) presiding. The other directors present were:—Mr. Arthur D. Brewster, Mr. Frank A. Lowe, Mr. G. Charles M. Thompson and Mr. A. R. Sharpe.

The Chairman, in moving the adoption of the report and statement of accounts, said that Eire had not escaped entirely from the effects of the gigantic struggle waged, in part, so close to her shores. Their deep sympathy was extended to those who lost relatives or property in the bomb incident last week.

During the past year they had been able to import large quantities of paper and cardboard from Canada and the United States of America, but, unfortunately, the shipping difficulty had become so acute that it was not possible to count on future supplies from these sources. Due to the shortage of paper and boards in England, export licences for the sale of these goods to Eire had been greatly reduced, which also applied to many other articles the firm stocked.

He thought they would be fully satisfied with the profits of the company for the past year. At £14,388 they showed a fall of £1,739 on the previous year, due firstly to the Budget having called for considerable reserves to meet the increased corporation and income taxes.

At previous meetings he had protested against the basis on which corporation tax was levied, but the new basis, in his opinion, was much fairer than was the old. This tax was the first charge on profits, and would be equal to a dividend of 4 per cent. on the Ordinary shares of their company.

STAFF BONUS

The second item affecting their profits was the war bonus scheme applying to the commercial and clerical staff, which worked on a sliding scale, according to the cost-of-living figure. Owing to the splendid loyalty of the staff it afforded him and the other members of the Board the greatest pleasure to be able to show the staff that, by helping them to tide over what was a difficult time for everyone, their loyalty and efforts were appreciated.

Continuing, the Chairman said that they would observe by the balance-sheet that £2,430 of Debenture stock had been redeemed, sundry creditors and credit balances were lower by approximately £1,000, and they had allocated £2,000 to their general reserves, bringing it to the handsome figure of £50,000, equal to their Ordinary capital. £2,000 had been added to their reserve for buildings. On the assets side of the balance sheet stock at £57,285 was £3,300 more than last year, when itself showed an increase of £6,000 on the previous year.

Reviewing the prospects of the year they had entered, Mr. Thompson said he could not look forward with any degree of optimism, but he could assure the shareholders that the management and staff were united in their efforts to capture their full share of whatever trade was available. They had the largest stock of goods ever carried by the company, and were in a very favourable position to meet many of the demands that would be made on them. He was perfectly satisfied that the great financial strength of their company would enable it, if necessary, to face a long period of dislocated trade with equanimity.

Mr. A. D. Brewster seconded the chairman's motion.

TAXATION

Mr. Joseph Walker, President of the Dublin Chamber of Commerce, supported the motion, and said that the shareholders were to be congratulated on the company's very successful year. Mention had been made of the Corporation Profits Tax, and they all hoped that these provisions would be amended in the Minister for Finance's Bill. He took it that Hely's would not be seriously affected by the retrospective taxation.

The Chairman, replying, said that the company would not be affected to any extent by retrospective taxation. He did not think they would be called upon to pay anything on the excess profits tax. The Corporation Profits Tax would make a call on them for the past year.

The motion was adopted.

On the motion of Dr. A. Mooney, seconded by Mr. E. Dunne, a dividend of 6 per cent. per annum, less income tax, on the Preference shares, and a dividend of 12½ per cent. and a bonus of 6d. per share per annum, less income tax, were adopted.

Mr. F. A. Lowe, retiring director, was re-elected, and also the auditors, Messrs. Peterson, Morrison and Co., chartered accountants.

Mr. P. J. Tannam, member of the staff, thanked the directors for the encouraging help they had given the staff. Their action was without precedent.

£40 A TON FOR WHITE FLOUR

The Dublin Board of Assistance, for the week ended 1st June, relieved 10,108 cases at a cost of £4,898 14s.—a decrease of £73 6s. from the previous week, and an increase of 345 cases and £942 14s. on the corresponding week of last year.

Dr. W. C. Dwyer, R.M.S., said that he had received an offer of £40 a ton for a quantity of white flour. At the time of the threatened shortage he had taken the precaution of laying in a big stock of flour, and at present had over 20 tons in stock. He had received a letter from the flour millers offering to take the flour and exchange for it a similar quantity of brown flour.

Dr. Dwyer said that if he baked the flour for the sick in the institution it would last for six weeks.

It was agreed that the flour should be baked for the sick in the institution. Dr. Dwyer said that if there was a surplus he could offer it to the general hospitals.

HARVESTING THE TURF

SOLDIERS ENJOY WORK IN THE BOG

Yesterday an Irish Times reporter watched 300 men of the Curragh Command, under Commandant J. Kenny, cutting turf at Lullymore bog, a few miles from Rathangan. They are cutting about 150 tons of turf a day and, apparently, enjoy their task.

Remarkably rapid progress has been made on this bog, which produces some of the finest turf in the country. Soldiers are wielding their sleans tossing the turf to their barrow-men, who are wheeling the sods in relays to dry out. It was obvious that the men were happy; they were exchanging cheerful badinage with one another as the work went on. Then the Commanding Officer, who was showing his visitors around, jumping ditches and occasionally grasping a spade to show a novice at the game how to open up a drain, would pause to discuss the number of floors a man had gone down, or the quality of turf which he was cutting.

The camp is nearly seven miles from the nearest village, but that worries nobody. They make their own fun, and occasionally the C.O. runs competitions (with prizes) for the best slean-men, or the best barrow-men, "after hours."

During the turf-cutting season this unit hopes to win between seven and eight thousand tons of turf, to be used in the bakery, the central heating plants, and anywhere else in the Command where it can be substituted for coal.

Back at the Curragh, the reporter watched many men on their recreational half-day working their own allotments.

GERMAN COMMENT ON BERLIN RAID

The Germans, says the Press Association, accuse the Royal Air Force of deliberately bombing the civilian population during their raid on Berlin on Monday night. "Despite the clearness of the night, a hospital and several dwelling houses were again hit," says the German News Agency. "The British no longer trouble to conceal the fact that their attacks are directed against the civilian population."

ONE Dō-Dō a day, keeps ASTHMA AWAY!

Scores of letters received from former sufferers from Asthma, now tremendously benefited by Do-Do, lay stress on the fact that ONE Do-Do a day (or even less) keeps them free from Asthma attacks. Here is a typical letter, from Mr. W. L., of Bungay, Suffolk, who writes on January 4th last:
"I have derived great relief from Asthma after taking your Do-Do Tablets. I started taking these Tablets about three years ago. I was so relieved that I was soon able to reduce the dose to one Tablet a day. I have still further reduced the dose to an occasional Tablet and still maintain my improved health. I can and do speak very highly of Do-Do."
It is the unique combination of soothing and healing medicaments—a combination found in no other single asthma remedy at any price—which makes it possible for a single Do-Do Tablet to give freedom from attacks for 24 hours, or even longer. Obtainable from Qualified Chemists everywhere at 1s. 3d. (7 full doses), 3s. 3d. (over 4 times the 1s. 3d. size) and 10s. 9d. (17 times the 1s. 3d. size).

KILL ACID AND END CONSTIPATION

When your stomach is full of excess acid it simply cannot digest your food. Every mouthful sours—your whole meal lies in your stomach a fermenting, lumpy mass. You get wind, nausea, heartburn—CONSTIPATION. Constipation imprisons the poisons and waste matter inside your bowels, soaks your whole system with acid and starts the vicious circle of torture all over again.

But you can break free, if, first, you get rid of the acid.

For years doctors have been recommending the safe brand of antacid 'Milk of Magnesia' as a laxative because it has a double action. The acid in the system is killed. More important still, the bowel is gently relaxed and both cause and effect of constipation move gently out of the system. With the bowels regular and the stomach free from acid, stomach, liver and bowels have a chance to do their job.

So remember that constipation and bad digestion are both due to excess acid. As soon as there is the slightest hint of too much acid, take a spoonful of 'Milk of Magnesia.' Do it for several days and watch how appetite improves, how much more regular you are. And you will wonder how anything so bland and gentle can be so promptly effective. 'Milk of Magnesia' is the trade mark of Phillips' preparation of Magnesia. There is nothing else like it. Try it to-day; you'll be delighted. Obtainable everywhere, 1/3 and 2/6 (treble size), also in tablet form 'Milk of Magnesia' brand Tablets, 6d., 1/-, 2/- and 3/6. Each tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of the liquid preparation.

"BLUE PRINTS" FOR THE NEW BRITAIN

STRANGLEHOLD ON PROFITEERING

FINANCE AS SERVANT, NOT MASTER

MR. HUGH DALTON, British Minister of Economic Warfare, told the Labour Party Conference in London yesterday that the Executive had set up a special committee to work out "blue prints" for the new Britain.

The Conference accepted the Executive's memorandum on post-war reconstruction, the voting being 2,413,000 to 30,000. On Tuesday the Executive's policy of full support for Britain's war effort was adopted by 2,430,000 votes to 19,000

Mr. Dalton said that, just as their resolve to win the war was firm and unbreakable, so was their resolve to win the peace Mass unemployment and distressed areas were intolerable in war and also in peace. Finance must remain the servant and not the master. Even as many buildings had been bombed and burned, so he hoped that many old ideas and conceptions had been blasted away. There would be no repetition after this war of the Great War fortunes which emerged from the last conflict.

END PRIVILEGES

Continuing the debate on peace aims, Mr. S. Silverman, M.P., said that the time had gone when their movement could be content with mere phrase-making, while Mr. J. Hallsworth (Distributive Workers' Union) urged that their movement must get a stranglehold on profiteering, mismanagement and incompetence, and prevent the employing class ever again capturing their old-time privileges.

Mr. Arthur Greenwood, Minister Without Portfolio, who replied to the debate, said:—"I am accustomed to our own people crying, 'Stinking fish.' When are we going to get credit for what we have achieved? Britain was the only country engaged in the war which had improved its social services. What then could they not do in peace if they set themselves to the task with the same energy they had thrown into the war?

"I ask this movement to trust my honesty and sincerity to get out of this work of mine the maximum in the interest of the common people of the land."

CO-OPERATION WITH U.S.A.

He believed that the growing co-operation between Britain and the U.S.A. would become closer and closer as the war continued, and that the two countries would help to guide all the freedom-loving peoples along the paths of peace towards new prosperity. British co-operation and that of the Dominions with the U.S.A. would give economic resources soon to obliterate all the material losses caused by war.

"I believe the Labour movement—without the support of which this war would be lost—has an important part to play in the shaping of the future. It must increase and improve its own organisation and raise its voice fearlessly in the country in order to persuade public opinion to our way of thinking. That is the way we shall get the reconstruction we want."

Three old members of the Executive Committee were defeated at the elections—Mr. A. M. Wall (London Society of Compositors), Mr. J. Wilmot (Kennington), and Miss Susan Lawrence (London Labour Party).

The Chairman, Mr. James Walker, M.P. (Iron and Steel Trades), topped the poll with 2,107,000 votes. Eight newcomers to the Committee were elected, a number of old members not seeking re-election.

Taxation and Loans.—A special meeting of the Cork Incorporated Chamber of Commerce and Shipping, which considered the Budget taxation and protested against retrospective taxation, made the following recommendations:—"That a 15-20 years' loan should be raised to meet the amount that would be collected by the retrospective legislation; that the limit for corporation profits tax should be raised from £1,000 to £3,000; that companies which showed loss or small profit for the three years ended September, 1938, be allowed 10 p.c. on pre-war capital before becoming liable to excess profits tax; that excess corporation profits tax be deducted from profits before profits for income tax are determined; that special capital expenditure be taken into consideration; that an average three out of five pre-war years would be more equitable than an average two out of three years proposed in connection with these taxes.

Mr. Saxon Payne referred to the statement attributed to Mr. William Grant, M.P., in the Northern House of Commons on Tuesday, regarding the speech made by the Rev. Dr. Woodburn, retiring Moderator. He said that he thought the observations were most uncalled for on the part of a member of the Government. (Applause.) They knew that Dr. Woodburn spoke as Moderator of the General Assembly, dealing with a social question which everyone in the United Kingdom knew must have particular attention at present.

Councillor Clark Scott said that he felt in his own heart that every word spoken by Dr. Woodburn was true. He only wished that more of their ministers would come to the front and speak such home truths, and he was glad that Dr. Woodburn had risen up and spoken as he had done.

The Moderator—Nothing has been moved. Is any further action to be taken?

PROTEST MOTION

The Rev. J. W. Johnston (Townsend Street) moved a resolution protesting against Mr. Grant's remarks, and also against the views expressed editorially by a Belfast morning paper.

Councillor Wilton seconded this motion, and said that they should pass a vote of confidence in Dr. Woodburn.

After further discussion the Assembly passed unanimously a resolution which stated:—

"That this House observes with strong disapprobation the views expressed by Mr. William Grant, M.P., in the Parliament of Northern Ireland, regarding the sermon of the Right Rev. Dr. Woodburn at the opening of the Assembly, and also the leading article published in the Northern Whig commenting on the addresses of the outgoing and incoming Moderators; resents the unwarrantable attacks, and expresses warm approval of the sentiments expressed by both Moderators."

The Moderator, in his closing address, paid tribute to the help he had received from the Rev. Dr. Moody and the Rev. W. A. Park. The Church, he said, was confronted with new problems requiring all its energies, and was asked to forget the ancient ones which could never trouble it again. But they had all come back exactly as they were depicted in Revelation. Satan had mysteriously returned.

"It solved the riddle of the almost complete disappearance of the Varicose Veins with which I have been troubled for years"

Dear Sirs,

Last night, when in the YORKSHIRE EVENING POST I saw the letters of appreciation of 'Phyllosan' for Varicose Veins, it solved the riddle of the almost complete disappearance of the Varicose Veins with which I have been troubled for years and which I was advised to have removed. Lately, I had noticed how much smaller they had become. On my right leg a bunch which was very large has practically disappeared.

Now that I have read of others who have had the same experience, it has made me realise that it is completely due to your 'Phyllosan,' which I have been taking for a general run-down condition.

'Phyllosan' has most certainly done me an immense amount of good and now that I am sure it is benefiting my Varicose Veins I intend persevering with it and trying to get rid of them completely.

I shall certainly continue to recommend 'Phyllosan.'

Yours faithfully, (Mrs.) ———

Note: The above letter was written in response to our request for confirmation of the beneficial effect of 'Phyllosan' brand tablets upon Varicose Veins. If you have had a similar experience, we should be very glad to hear from you. Please address your letter to Natural Chemicals, Ltd. (Dept. No. P39), St. Helens, Lancs.
